Introduction

- Gospel Adewale ADEGOKE is a Nigerian studying for a Masters Degree in Science in Animal Ecology and Environmental Biology at the Federal University of Agriculture, Abeokuta.
- He has worked as an intern at the Nigerian Institute of Medical Research (2018), where he experienced modern practices and procedures of research in the biochemistry and nutrition department. His research interest centres on wildlife conservation, animal ecology and environmental biology. He is particularly interested in the impact of anthropocentric activities and environmental conditions on variations in animals' biology, ecology and conservation.
- His current postgraduate research focuses on the neurobiological and behavioural implications of exposure to sunlight (specifically ultraviolet and infrared light) on animals.
- As a 2022 AGCMP fellow, he has gained more interest, knowledge, experience and guidance about academics, research skills and methods in his research field via accurate mentorship with his mentor, Dr Richard Omidiwura.
